IF YOUR PRINCIPAL DIED LAST NIGHT WITHOUT A FUNERAL PLAN.

WHAT WOULD YOU BE DOING TODAY?

No one is comfortable talking about the day of their funeral, but taking control of that inevitable conversation and organizing a principal's final wishes is simply the right thing to do for their family, enterprise, and legacy.

These conversations involve some of the more intricate personal choices one may ever make, and must include forthright discussions between the principal and their family - granting all the opportunity to share specific requests, relate special tributes and recognize elements of personal significance.

By creating a memorial that reflects personal and family wishes, intentional funeral planning offers individuals an opportunity to honor their own, unique life-story and legacy. It eliminates confusion, minimizes differences of opinion, and identifies trusted decision-makers in advance of that dreaded day.

Often guided by confidants within the family office, memorial event plans ensure a principal's final wishes are fulfilled and a family's burden of making tough decisions is lessened. It also establishes a codified framework to aid the family and organization during an unexpected or major event.

Will your plan be well orchestrated, or an emotional guessing-game?

Here are some examples of the countless decisions to be made - Right to address them now, lest unfortunate timing offers no other choice.

- ◆ When and how is the principal's demise communicated to family, friends and associates?
- ◆ What if death occurs overseas?
- ◆ When and where will the funeral be held?
- ◆ Do tributes align appropriately with family wishes and values?
- ◆ Will events be public or private?
- ◆ Is the venue proportional to the number of invited guests?
- ◆ What are the family's thoughts regarding burial or cremation?

LHT Consulting Group specializes in the creation and implementation of comprehensive memorial event plans to commemorate the life and legacy of distinguished individuals. We are recognized for unparalleled expertise, ultimate discretion, and an unwavering commitment to excellence.
